MORAVIANS PREPARE EASTER OBSERVANCE IN SUNRISE CEREMONY IN "GOD'S ACRE"

Washington, March 26.—(U.P.)—President and Mrs. Hoover may attend sunrise services at Arlington cemetery on Easter morning. The services were arranged by the Knights Templar, who invited all prominent government officials, congressmen and members of the diplomatic corps.

Later in the morning, the Hoovers will join in worship at the Friends meeting house to which they usually go.

The big day in the White House Easter observance will be Monday, when thousands of children will frolic over the lawns in the traditional egg-rolling festivities. Mrs. Hoover also has arranged a May pole dance and a band concert for them.

Bethlehem, Pa., March 26.—(U.P.)—As the first rays of the sun light the hills above the Lehigh river Sunday, hundreds of faithful Moravians will assemble in "God's Acre" to greet the eastern morn with a trombone choir leading them.

Robert Fleischer, Reputed Head of Detroit's "Purple Gang" seen in Washington.

Hopewell, N. J., March 26.—(U.P.)—Two known kidnapers—Harry Fleischer and Abie Wagner—continued today to be the hub of the police investigation into the abduction of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr.

They have not been seen since the kidnaping. One report had one of the two in central New Jersey just prior to the time the infant was seized from its crib. Police desire to question them as to their activities.

Admits Search Continues

Colonel H. Norman Schwartzkopf today in his regular press conference admitted the search for them continued but would not comment on whether they had been located or what Washington police had advised. A search is underway in Washington for a man who was thought to be Fleischer and who called at a rooming house seeking lodging. In the man's motor car was a woman and a child.

Schwartzkopf refused to discuss the Norfolk angle of the case, where three prominent citizens feel certain they have been approached by the kidnapers and are seeking to resume contacts which they believe will result in the return of the baby.

"Purple Gang" Members

Washington, March 26.—(U.P.)—Harry Fleischer, reputed leader of the Detroit "Purple Mob," was sought here today for questioning in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping.

A general alarm was sent out by police after two men, one resembling Fleischer, and a woman with a baby applied for lodging at three rooming houses in Washington.

Authorities in various cities have been seeking Fleischer for several days.

Four youths at a rooming house in the city's northeast section told police Fleischer sought lodging there but was turned away because the place was full. They said they recognized him from newspaper pictures. Later they were shown photographs on file at headquarters and made the identification positive, police said.

The youths did not get a look at the woman and baby, who remained in an automobile outside.

Considers New Appeal

Hopewell, N. J., March 26.—(U.P.)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was understood today to be considering another direct appeal asking kidnapers of his 21-month-old son to get in touch with him.

Such an appeal would be the fourth made by the colonel and would indicate he did not place much faith in hopes of three Norfolk, Va., residents, that the baby is being held near Norfolk and will be returned soon.

Boston, March 26.—(U.P.)—A Hartford, Conn., man who claims to have "inside information" on the Lindbergh kidnaping which will enable him to lead police to the baby, was detained here today.

The man is Harry W. Mack, 34. He said he needed only a half hour's conversation with Betty Gow, the kidnaped child's nurse, to complete his "inside" knowledge and find the child.

Knights Templar Attend Easter Service at the First Baptist Church

The Knights Templar of Ascalon Commandery No. 16 K. T. will attend divine service at the First Baptist church at 3:00 p. m. Easter Sunday afternoon. The Sir Knights will gather at the Ascalon at 2:30 and march to the church in a body uniformed in Knight Templar accoutrements.

This service is an annual occasion of the Commandery and is open to the public and all interested are most cordially welcome to attend. The Rev. E. A. Valiant will deliver the sermon, supported by the Baptist church choir rendering Easter music.

And as the quiet, peaceful brethren climb the winding path toward this rugged Pennsylvania mountain, they recall another hilltop across the valley from the Holy City where the event they come to commemorate took place more than 1900 years ago.

Since Wednesday the Moravians have streamed into their great church. It is cloistered by ancient trees at the foot of the hill where they bury their loved ones. Prayer and silent meditation preceded the annual ceremony of rejoicing.

And in the old church, erected in 1803, the teachings of the lonely man who died on a cross on the hill of Golgotha are taught to the assembled worshippers.

Senate Coalition in New Proposal to Pare Federal Expenses $500,000,000

Washington, Mar. 26.—(U.P.)—An economy coalition of senate democrats and progressive republicans was today considering a new proposal to lop $500,000,000 off the cost of the federal government. Its idea is that with such a saving, tax increases could be limited to about half of the $1,000,000,000 hitherto considered necessary to balance the budget.

The coalition plan is to reduce by 25 per cent the operating allowances for all federal departments, bureaus and agencies. Salaries would not be affected by this plan, at the house economy committee continued to wrestle with an assortment of proposals to save around $100,000,000 through salary reductions.

The new economy suggestion was publicly advanced coincidentally with a new appeal by President Hoover for the nation to support whatever measures are necessary to balance the budget.

Terming a balanced budget the "very keystone of recovery," the president said:

"One of the first requirements to the accomplishment of the absolute necessity of a balanced budget is that the people and all their organizations should support and not obstruct the members of congress in sound efforts to both reduce expenditures and adjust taxation."

Mr. Hoover said he was confident further economies could be made "through the authority of congress to eliminate unnecessary functions of the government or in postponement of less essential activities, together with a business like reorganization and coordination of government activities."

Last Great Rebel Chieftain of Desert Flees Before Foreign Legion Leaving Harem 70 Including White Girl

Rabat, Morocco, Mar. 26.—(U.P.)—The French Foreign Legion was ordered today to pursue the last great rebel chieftain of the desert tribes, Belkacem, the fighting Moor.

He escaped into the sand dunes with some 30 followers when the legion and colonial troops captured the oasis of Tafilalet last month. Natives found Belkacem and his followers hiding in the Atlas mountains. They were understood to have defended their stronghold well. A brisk engagement was expected.

The capture of Tafilalet was made with the cooperation of airplanes and artillery. When the French entered the oasis they found that the chief had fled from his great mud palace, leaving behind the 70 women in his harem, including one white girl.

Trinidad, Colo., March 26.—(U.P.)—Attempting to witness sadistic penitents rites 18 miles west of Trinidad last night, two Trinidad youths were discovered and beaten and brought to jail here. Their names were not divulged and they were released from jail after their penitence captors left.

The youths went with two penitence companions who were sons of a dead man for whom the penitents planned to offer prayers. At intervals the group of penitents stopped to pray, and several lashed themselves with whips.

At the penitence church the group split up, part of them, including the sons of the dead man, entering the church and others proceeding to the penitence cemetery.

The Trinidad boys followed to the cemetery, having become separated from their friends at the church. At the cemetery a strange ceremony started. Some knelt in prayer. Others lashed themselves. Then they started to march around the cemetery. The two outsiders became confused in the darkness and stood still. Their identity was discovered and the penitents set upon them.

They struck them and beat them with the lashes and placed them in a car and brought them to the Trinidad jail. Later they were released.

TEST CASE OF MAINTAINING NUISANCE PROMISED IN PROPOSED WICKS APPEAL

Announcing that he had perused the law intensively, Judge J. H. Warner today ruled in municipal court that evidence of sale of intoxicating liquor was not compulsory to warrant a conviction of a defendant charged with maintaining a nuisance.

His ruling upheld former custom in municipal court here that possession of liquor in a house constituted the offense of maintaining a nuisance. He also contended that possession of liquor was in violation of the treaty whereby Brainerd is included in so-called Indian territory.

In connection with the ruling, Judge Warner denied the motion of George Wicks' attorney, D. H. Fullerton, for a dismissal of action against Wicks charged with maintaining a nuisance. The motion to dismiss was entered by Fullerton at the close of the state's case last Thursday.

Fullerton informed the court the defense would enter no testimony and announced that he intended to appeal the decision to the district court, establishing the case as a test case.

Finding Wicks guilty, Judge Warner sentenced Wicks to pay a fine of $75 or 60 days in jail. He ordered a stay of sentence for ten days to permit application for appeal.

MEXICAN BANDITS LOOT, TERRORIZE NEW MEXICO FARMS

Columbus, N. M., March 26.—(U.P.)—Gun guards rode the range around this isolated little border town today to protect American cattle herds from the forays of Mexican bandits.

Residents of Columbus, remembering similar raids for the wild forces of Pancho Villa, the famous Mexican bandit, when ranches and buildings were burned, herds raided, and many Americans killed, went armed, and sought military protection from bandits who have terrorized this section for a week.

Eight mounted bandits crossed the border Thursday night and raided the J. M. Crump ranch, near here, looting and implementing sheds before they were driven off after a gun battle by A. Poole, manager of the ranch.

On Wednesday night bandits raided the Stiles ranch, nearby, but also were driven off after a gun battle.

A store in the heart of Columbus was looted Tuesday night, and the bandits engaged in a brief gun fight with the owner before they fled across the border into the safety of old Mexico.

"Columbus faces another sacking and massacre such as it had in 1916 unless we are given troop protection," Mayor Ravel wired Gov. Seligman. "Bandits are growing bolder daily and we are living at their mercy."

2 HELD TO DISTRICT COURT ARSON COUNT

Rose Ledoux, 45, Duluth, former Brainerd resident and Fred Kimbrell, 21, were arraigned in municipal court this morning charged with arson in the third degree in connection with a fire at the former Ledoux residence at 311 North 11th street, January 20, 1931.

Each waived preliminary hearing and was held to district court on bonds of $500.

Complaint was made by H. V. Himsel, State Fire Marshal, who has been assisted in the investigation by Fire Chief Frank Fuller.

The fire caused an estimated damage of $400. Insurance of $1200 was carried. The house was owned by the Citizens State Bank of Brainerd and was being purchased by Wm. Ledoux and his wife, Rose Ledoux.

SOVIET SILENT AS WAR TECHNICIANS ARE ORDERED FRONT

UNDERSTOOD ADDITIONAL MILITARY FORCES HAVE BEEN ORDERED TO BE IN READINESS

Copyright, 1932, by United Press
Moscow, March 26.—(U.P.)—Russia today was moving a considerable number of technical specialists to the Soviet far east for service with the strengthened military forces.

Government Silent
Press and government were silent as to these latest plans—but the news spread as residents of the capital told of friends and acquaintances who had been ordered into the far eastern service.

Engineers, construction specialists, chauffeurs, aviation mechanics and doctors are among the technicians sent east. Their orders conform to reports.

Tokio, March 26.—(U.P.)—Japan decided today to withdraw from the League of Nations if the league attempted to exert undue pressure for settlement of the Shanghai and Manchurian situations, a government spokesman said.

An official announcement here said that Sir Eric Drummond, league secretary-general, had informed Japanese Delegate Nontake Sato at Geneva that the league was prepared to apply section 4 of article 15 of the covenant to the dispute between China and Japan in Manchuria.

Japan has contended throughout that settlement must be made by direct negotiations with China. In the event the league acts according to Sir Eric's announcement, a spokesman said, Japan will withdraw.

cent declarations in Izvestia, the government newspaper, that the government was taking measures to protect the far eastern frontiers.

Admissions have been made recently that military forces along the eastern frontier have been strengthened.

At the same time it was understood that certain categories of the military reserves are being informed for service at short notice. Well informed circles consider this a normal precautionary measure, justified by maneuvers near the Soviet's Asiatic doors.

Increase War Manoeuvres

The usual military drill, as mask practice and other preparedness activities recently have been increased in all Soviet factories and institutions. The million or more members of the Osoaviakhim, society for aviation and chemical defense, have been extremely active lately under stimulus of the far eastern developments.

Military defense propaganda has been intensified in the press, over the radio and in the theaters and on the screen.

The government has emphasized it is anxious to avoid war but is urging the utmost preparedness to repel any attacks.

Eagle Bend Youth Loses Life on U. S. Transport

Eagle Bend, Minn., March 26.—(U.P.)—Russell Weibye, whose parents live here, was electrocuted aboard a United States transport between China and Manila, according to a message received today. The notice from the government said that he was accidentally electrocuted on shipboard, but gives no other details of the accident.

HOLD TWO REVENGE SLAYING REPORTER

Hattiesburg, Miss., March 26.—(U.P.)—A man and his wife, whom police said had resented a story written by a newspaper reporter, were reported held today in connection with the alleged slaying of the newspaperman, Hansel Batten.

Batten's mangled body was found on railroad tracks several weeks ago a few hours after he had attended a dance. At the time it was believed he had been accidentally killed.

Tom and Vera Jones were arrested near Pontchartroula, La., yesterday. Authorities said the couple had been angered at a news story Batten wrote concerning Jones' alleged violation of the prohibition law.

Washington, March 26.—(U.P.)—The house today adopted the Crisp substitute amendment restoring taxes on malt wort, oil, grape concentrates and other products, after it had run wild introducing tariff provisions into the section. The vote was 185 to 14.

The amendment carries an import tax of 10 cents per 100 pounds on coal and coke, a measure sponsored by Rep. Boland, Democrat, Pennsylvania, and introduced over the opposition of the house leadership.

Crisp Warns Democrats

Washington, March 26.—(U.P.)—Acting Chairman Crisp of the ways and means committee today warned the rebellious Democratic members of the house that they were "destroying their party" by their amendments to the revenue bill.

Earlier today the house adopted an amendment to the revenue bill which would put a ten per cent per hundred pound tax on coal and coke imports. The vote by teller was 113 for the amendment to 67 opposed. The amendment was proposed by Rep. Boland, Dem., Pa.

Crisp took the floor of the house to lash his colleagues after they had voted the tariff on imported coal and seemed prepared to approve another tariff schedule on flux for iron making.

"This is a sad day for me," Crisp said, "because I love my party and today I see my party destroying itself."

He asked his former followers how they could go before the country to criticize the Republican tariff when they themselves were enacting high taxes on imports in the revenue bill.

Crisp's plea was successful to the extent that the house defeated the flux amendment by a vote of 92 to 42.

The Georgia Democrat, as he berated the house, charged that the Republican membership were combining with the insurgent Democrat in the amendment which he said would react against the party in the coming elections.

"Patience," he added, "has ceased to be a virtue and I am going to express myself and I say to you if these amendments are adopted I shall vote against the bill."

Representative LaGuardia, Republican, New York, leader of the tax bill opposition, followed Crisp on the floor in an eloquent appeal to his followers to "stand by the committee and bring out a bill to raise some revenue."

Beginning in a voice so low that the tense congressmen scarcely could hear, LaGuardia said that in spite of the "continued abuse" from advocates of the sales tax they must bring out an adequate tax bill.

Representative Mahener, Republican, Michigan, drew boos and catcalls from the Democratic side of the house when he intervened in the party quarrel to charge that "this house is out of control of its responsible leaders."

"This revenue bill seems to have degenerated into a tariff fight between members of the majority party," the Republican declared.

"There is too much at stake to permit this sort of thing to continue. I might say 'I told you so,' but I won't."

Brewing Firm Employee Killed by Bandits

Minneapolis, Mar. 26.—(U.P.)—Two bandits fatally wounded Willy Hageman, 57, employe of the Schmidt Brewing company, during a holdup last night. Hageman died in St. Mary's hospital this morning.

Hageman and his fellow employe, Dudley A. Taylor, were held up as they opened the door to Taylor's garage. As Hageman approached the house, the second bandit fired on him without warning.

Hageman had $125 in his pockets which was untouched by the bandits after he was wounded.

DeValera Repeats Plan To Remove British Oath

Dublin, Mar. 26.—(U.P.)—Eamon DeValera, newly elected president of the Irish Free State, today reiterated the government's intention to remove the oath of the king from the constitution.

The oath must be removed at all costs, he said.

"It is an offensive test which the Irish people cannot tolerate," DeValera said.

It was understood the government would not reply before Tuesday to the note received from Great Britain.

The Blindfolded Test NEVER APPLIED To Banking

Maybe a blindfolded man offers splendid proof of a cigarette's quality—but the idea never applied to banking.

Business men of today insist on having their eyes open. It is the function of a bank to be an institution of such character that the business man can rely upon their eyes to help him see the path to follow.

"Reality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Christian Science churches everywhere on Sunday, March 27, 1932.

The Golden Text is: "Since the beginning of the world men have not heard, nor perceived by the ear, neither hath the eye seen, O God, beside thee, what He hath prepared for him that waiteth for him" (Isaiah 64:4).

Among the citations comprising the Lesson-Sermon, is the following passage from the Bible: "And God saw everything that He made, and behold, it was very good" (Genesis 1:31).

Also included in the Lesson-Sermon is the following quotation from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The Scriptures imply that God is all-in-all. From this it follows that nothing possesses reality nor existence except the divine mind and His ideas. Everything in God's universe expresses Him" (p. 331).

A FOOL-PROOF SAFETY VALVE—

The prolonged, acrimonious and unsettling row in the House of Representatives over the sales tax was unquestionably a direct reflection of wide-spread popular discontent over the continued depression.

That such a phrase as "soak the rich" should have become something of a slogan for one faction was almost inevitable; so, too, was the fact that one leader finally fell back on calling his opponents Bolsheviks. The whole business grew out of the sullen resentment and the ching desire for some sort of change which the depression has brought.

And yet, even though the spectacle and its connotations may be somewhat dismaying, it really is an excellent testimonial to the strength and adaptability of the American system of popular government.

When any large section of the populace, in any nation, gets the feeling that things are going pretty badly and that there are in the world crushing injustices which must be set right without delay, there are just two things it can do; it can tear up the cobblestones to make barricades, and indulge in anything from a simple riot to a genuine revolution, or it can egg on its elected representatives to raise a bit of cain in the national legislature.

Where the second course of action is impossible, the first one is certain to be tried. But where it is easy to take the second course, the danger of extensive street fighting is so small that you can hardly see it with the naked eye.

In the United States the machinery of government, while it may be clumsy, is at least responsive to the will of the people. It enables them to take any sort of action they please, in times of stress, without breaking things. In that way it acts as a fool-proof safety valve.

For about two years, now, things in the United States have been acutely uncomfortable for a great many people. Hunger and want have been more prevalent than at any time in decades. And what has been the outstanding result? A sudden, unexpected flurry in Congress about the form which the next tax law is to take.

Nothing could show more clearly how microscopic the danger of revolutionary violence in the United States really is.

A PUZZLING PROBLEM—

Frank Pauletta is back in prison in West Virginia, awaiting execution for a murder he committed away back in 1914.

In that year he was convicted and sentenced to hang; but he broke jail, went to Pennsylvania, became a coal miner, married, and reared four children, his past completely concealed. Just the other day, however, the authorities discovered his identity, he was returned to the West Virginia prison, and his hanging was set for April 22.

All of this raises once more the perplexing question about what should be done with escaped convicts who have managed to reform and have been leading respectable lives. This man seems to have been a useful citizen for some 15 years. Of course, he has never atoned for his crime—but does it seem quite fair, at this date, to drag him back to the gallows?

THAT WET-DRY VOTE—

As might have been expected, the recent House vote on the prohibition modification question has led to all kinds of claims and counter-claims from both sides of the fence. Both wets and dries seem to have found a good deal in it to crow over, and both seem to be able to deduce all kinds of things from an examination of the vote.

The one thing that seems obvious, though, to a dispassionate observer is that the vote proved practically nothing of any real importance.

Do the mass of the people still want prohibition or is there an overwhelming shift to the wet side? Study the House votes all you please and you'll still be in the dark. It is a bit too soon to be making definite claims. There will have to be more elections and more expressions of the popular will before we shall have sufficient light on the subject. The vote in the House, useful in that it forced lots of congressmen to quit straddling, really settled nothing.

BRAINY CHILDREN—

The exceptionally brainy child is better-looking than other children and tends to be a good deal taller, stronger and heavier.

This is the conclusion reached by a survey made at Columbia University recently, where some 56 gifted youngsters were painstakingly examined.

Doubtless the Columbia experts could produce statistics to buttress their claim. But it is amazingly easy to think of famous men who must have been striking exceptions. There were, for instance, Steinmetz, the crippled dwarf; Lincoln, one of the ugliest men who ever lived; Stonewall Jackson, awkward clumsy and almost grotesque; Roosevelt, sickly and puny; Napoleon, far below normal height; Lenin, thin and wizened—but why go on? The list could be a long one. The rule can hardly be an iron-clad one.

BENEFIT FROM COLD—

It is, as everyone who has read the old copy book maxims knows, an all wind that blows nobody any good.

Expiring winter recently came to life and struck most of the middle west with a severe and extended dose of cold weather. This was unpleasant for practically everybody, and much more than that for a few.

But for the coal miners of Illinois it was a lucky break. More than 5,000 miners got full-time jobs as a result of the sudden cold snap. The icy blasts that made other citizens mutter uncomplimentary things about the weather man meant full pay checks again for these men.

The dime-a-dance girl

By Joan Clayton

BEGIN HERE TODAY

ELLEN ROSSITER, beautiful 20-year-old, falls in love with LARRY HARRINGTON, young artist, whom she meets at Dreamland where she works as a dance hall hostess. Larry is engaged to ELIZABETH BOWES, a debutante, but shows attentions to Ellen until his fiancée returns from Europe.

From a sense of gratitude Ellen agrees to marry STEVEN BARCLAY, a kind and wealthy man of 57 who has paid hospital expenses for her brother, MIKE, injured in a street accident. He also finds a job for BERT ARMSTEAD, engaged to Ellen's sister, MYRA.

Barclay has been married and divorced. Scandal accompanied his divorce from LENA GRAYSON, a dancer, and, fearing this talk may be revived, he and Ellen agree to keep their marriage secret until after they sail for Europe.

Barclay wishes to settle a fortune on Ellen. They go to the office of SYMES & PRENDERGAST, Barclay's attorneys, but the papers are not ready and Ellen refuses to wait, saying they can be signed after the ceremony.

On the wedding morning Ellen feels she can not go through with the ceremony. Myra persuades her that she must. The two couples drive to a small Connecticut town where the marriage is to take place. Barclay is aware of Ellen's fears. If she wishes to postpone the marriage.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXV

ELLEN was overwhelmed with relief. Steven's question struck the chains from her very spirit. To postpone this marriage, to defer it until Steven's return from London—that would give her five blessed weeks in which to conquer her problem. She need not go ahead. The man who loved her had himself set her free.

Then she looked at Steven and saw in his eyes the despair he could not hide. She knew she could not take advantage of such quixotic generosity. She understood Steven had made the offer because he was the person he was. She saw Steven again as a beloved friend. He was not a stranger whom she could hurt.

"Why postpone it?" she demanded courageously.

"I thought you might like to, my dear."

"I wouldn't," she told him on a note of high courage. "I want to be married today with Myra. That's what we came for."

And Barclay was content.

They were married in a tiny white painted church with green leafy branches rustling against the windows and letting through spots of sunshine that speckled the red carpet. The minister's wife cut flowers from her garden for the altar and played "Oh Promise Me" at the organ just before the ceremony.

The minister's wife was a romantic soul. She did not dream that the last note of the song made ELlen think of an ocean liner's whistle and of the final warning, "All ashore that's going ashore." She did not guess that as the organ wheezed to silence and Ellen fought down the sheer panic that made her want to rush from the church and the pale, beautiful bride was thinking it was too late now to go ashore. The gangplank was raised.

Then as the minister began to speak Ellen saw Steven's adoring eyes smiling into her's and was afraid no longer. How could she be afraid of one who loved her so?

Her response was clear and steady. She heard Steven's voice. Then there was a frosty circle of platinum and diamonds on her finger, and Steven bent to kiss her. The minister smiled his congratulations and Ellen heard Molly sob. It was over. She was Mrs. Steven Barclay.

Steven's eyes were deep and pointed. Molly rushed to him and he kissed her new son. Molly who had become a bride five minutes earlier was kissing them both and comparing her ring with Ellen's while Bert, a little in the background, looked shyly on and thought his own bride the most beautiful girl in the world.

ELLEN, still in a world of unreality, was resolving to be the best wife in the world to Steven. She accepted the arm he offered, clung to it and looked up confidently at her husband, her eyes luminous and solemn as a child's eyes. Together they walked out into the sunshine.

There was rice after all—a small bag of it flung by Mrs. Southerly from the steps of the church. The spell of solemnity disappeared in a burst of hysterical laughter. Refreshments had been prepared in the parsonage, a tiny, white house in the shadow of the church, but the wedding party was too hurried to stop, much to Mrs. Southerly's disappointment. She stood on the sidewalk, shaded by a great oak tree, and waved until the big car was out of sight.

They had scarcely been gone a quarter of an hour before Louis Syms, Barclay's lawyer, leaped from a roadster that had come roaring down the highway, frantically rang the parsonage door bell and demanded to see Steven at once. Mrs. Southerly, in a fever of interest and excitement, told him the marriage had all ready taken place. No, she did not know where the bride and bridegroom were bound. She thought perhaps—

"Let me see your husband," Syms cut her short.

Almost before she had pointed out her husband's study, Syms was striding across the room, knocked on the door and was inside. Within five minutes the study door burst open again. The lawyer raced from the house and is to be our home, Ellen."

They drove on through the September night.

Ellen felt small and insignificant, not married at all, as the car turned through high iron gates, cracked up a smooth driveway that was like a long, white ribbon, and at last hesitated beneath the porte cochere of a great stone house. Lights burned from all the windows on the lower floor.

THEY had driven through landscaped grounds and she had caught a glimpse of the swimming pool gleaming with stars. Stevens had pointed out the stables and tennis courts, had spoken of golf and boating.

Could this be home? Could this ever be home to her?

She had a sudden hysterical notion that he and she might be dropped into separate wings of the great house and be unable to find each other for days. When they were inside it was not like that at all.

They entered a long, softly lighted living room with strange gleams of copper from the walls and the soft shine of old and well worn furniture. The room was perfect even to a copper bowl of yellow roses on the coffee table beside a rosy wood fire lighted against the chill outside. Ellen looked about her, silent with delight. Why had she been so afraid of wealth when this was what wealth brought? Beauty that took the breath away.

"Do you like the place, Ellen?" Steven asked softly.

"Oh—so much!"

"My darling, darling wife," he whispered.

There was something in the husky, whispered voice that filled her heart with panic. Not now, not now! Not until she had a little while—

Steven must have read her face. When he was beside her he put an arm about her shoulder and led her to a place by the fire. She heard him speaking.

"We'll have that food," he said quietly. "The bells aren't connected and I'll have to find Ferguson."

With that he was gone. Ellen trembled as she saw that he had left the room. How good he was! She waited five minutes, 10 minutes and with each passing moment she felt her courage revive. She began to wish that he would return.

Lying on the coffee table were the morning newspapers, still primly jacketed and unopened. She glanced casually at the headlines, then started to turn the pages in search of a favorite columnist. As the society page flipped by, she paused.

There was a brief announcement that the engagement between Lawrence Harrowgate and Elizabeth Bowes had been broken.

THE OPEN FORUM

Santa Ana, Calif., March 21, 1932. To the Editor Daily Dispatch, Baseball Boys and All My Friends:

In donating the ground for a ball park I have considered the fact that Brainerd has always been handicapped by too many hillside seats at the Koenig park. There were about two-thirds ringside seats on the hills and one-third paid admissions. This park, I hope, will be very satisfactory and also be a money maker.

I think it will be necessary to have the Brookside plat vacated and the land put back into acreage tract as the public streets run through it and they are dedicated to the use of the public. Also think it would be a good idea to have a Sixth street entrance if it could be arranged so that would act as the best advertisement that all that pass can read and also add to the beauty of the park.

Just a suggestion as to the fence. It would be fine if a good oak one could be made. The lumber companies should sell you the lumber at cost and the paint dealers might donate some paint and sell the balance needed at cost and, lastly, the baseball fans could make a few days of it and spread the paint on fence and grandstand.

In passing it might be well to give a short history of the park. Way back, when it was the Fair grounds, horse and bicycle races were held there. It was a half mile track and at one bicycle race young Dr. Thabes took the rail and won hands down among much applause and the band played "Daisy, Daisy on a Bicycle Built for Two." The genial doctor has held the rail and been well to the front in the medical world ever since.

The Brainerd Street Railway at that time went as far as the creek on Sixth street at which point Charley Mitchell and Johnnie Congdon, conductors, called all out for the fair grounds and everybody walked the rest of the way in the sand and liked it!

The notorious Jack Burns and gentlemen of his cloth, from Little Falls, generally won all the money for horse races. Many bottles of beer were in evidence as Brainerd only had about thirty-five saloons at that time and Andrew Volstead was far in the distance. Later I bought the tract from Howard Baker at a cost of land and improvements for about $6,000. We had the band out and a big crowd and started to sell lots when the iron mine shut down and we called the sale off and returned the money to those that had bought lots. The mine has been closed ever since. And, lastly, I hope the baseball boys spend a little more and make it the finest ball park in the northwest, not just another weather beaten, run down unsightly land mark.

Also hope that the people of Brainerd will have as much pleasure from this new place of amusement as it gives me to donate it for that purpose.

Yours very truly,
E. C. BANE.

There is a movement on foot to reorganize the Brainerd cornet band. It is now two years since Brainerd has had a continuous band organization and the people are anxious for band music.

A large and appreciative audience was on hand at the Methodist church last evening to listen to an analysis of the character of Judas and the roll he played in the betrayal of the Christ.

Thoughts for Lent

"O Death, Where Is Thy Sting? O Grave, Where Is Thy Victory?" (Read I Corinthians 15:12-58.)

Again we turn to Paul for an interpretation of what we have called "the Great Paradox of history." This passage is too overwhelmingly majestic, both in conception and in feeling, to be wholly grasped save by almost a lifetime of contemplation and thought. Yet, even from one reading we receive an impression too profound for verbal description. Let us then, today, give ourselves over to the force and sweep of Paul's mighty concept and passionate emotion, preparing ourselves for entrance into the experience of Easter Day.

Prayer: We thank Thee, O God, for whom Thou didst send us, and for the victory over sin and death which cometh through Him. Help us, we pray, to be steadfast and unmovable in our faith, that we may enter with joy and assurance upon the experience which Thou holdest in store for those who loved Him with steadfastness even through the hours before dawn. Amen.

WAR MATERIAL IS GIVEN TO MUSEUM

A notable contribution by E. A. Houle of the Houle Motor Co., Brainerd, to the Crow Wing County Historical society consists of the following articles which he picked up on battlefields in France: a German rifle, complete with bayonet and scabbard, bolt action, used during the world war and found on the battle field at Ypres, France, with a clip of rifle shells; two German helmets, one German gas mask complete, one French bayonet and one British bayonet, one German hand grenade and one American pineapple hand grenade capable of destroying 40 men.

Henry I. Cohen, president of the society, also acknowledged the receipt of books entitled "Minnesota in the Civil and Indian Wars, 1861-1865" contributed by Mr. Thomson of Emily; also an English Enfield rifle, dated 1861, used in the British army. A number of these rifles were brought to this country and converted into shotguns. They were dubbed "The Zulus."

The war equipment will be on display Sunday afternoon and thereafter at the society's museum room in the new court house basement.

KNUTSON MOVES TO PROTECT PAPER, IRON AND OTHER INDUSTRIES

HIGHER TARIFF IS NEEDED TO RETURN THOUSANDS TO WORK

Congressman Harold Knutson would bring back better times by the placing of a high tariff on foreign goods, iron ore and paper and would force through tariff United States industries to move mills in other countries and bring them back home to provide employment for hundreds of thousands of men out of employment.

Would Hit Paper, Iron Import
Knutson in spirited addresses before the House has introduced amendments destined to place a tariff of one cent a pound on newsprint paper imported into the United States, $20 per long ton on newsprint pulp imported into the United States and $150 per cord on pulp wood imported into the United States; also an import tax of $1.50 per long ton on all imports into the United States on iron ore; and in import tax of $3 per long ton on all imports into the United States of pig iron and iron contained in spiegelisen.

Knutson's zeal in protective measures to the working man and United States industries is embodied in his speeches in the House.

Speedy Action Required

"I am prompted to offer the amendments because of the fact that this will perhaps be the last opportunity that we will have in this session of congress to give some measure of relief to industries which are in dire straits because of the inadequacy of the present tariff law. The iron mining and newsprint industries have been obliged to greatly curtail their activities due to foreign competition, and if this congress does not give them relief, many now operating on part time will be obliged to suspend altogether," Knutson said.

The congressman continued: "Recently F. H. Payne, assistant secretary of war, addressed a communication to Howard H. Cook, secretary, American Iron and Steel Institute, of New York City, which reads in part as follows:

"My Dear Mr. Cook:

"The question of assuring during war time an adequate supply of manganese ore to maintain the production of the steel industry at the rate demanded by any military program is one that has received much thought in the War Department. This question resolves itself into a situation in which foreign sources of this ore are denied to this country and reliance must be placed on domestic or nearby producers.

"In view of the dependence of the military requirements upon steel products and of the supreme importance of manganese in the making of sound steel, it is deemed essential to have available at the beginning of a major war a domestic or nearby operating source of manganese ore.

"To create such an operating source during peace time the producers must have a market for their output. It is therefore suggested that you bring to the attention of the members of the Institute, who are consumers of manganese ore, the viewpoint of the War Department, and its hope that the domestic and Cuban projects may possess sufficient merit to warrant their assistance in encouraging the development during peace time of these sources of manganese supply for war time needs."

Keep Mines Open

"The House will see from Mr. Payne's communication that the national security demands that we keep our manganese mines in operation in peace times so as to be ready for any eventuality and I appeal to the patriotism of the House and ask you to adopt this amendment. Manganese is produced in 38 states of the Union and I think that I am safe in saying that 85 per cent. of the mines are owned and operated by independent producers. It is true that in years gone by the big eastern steel interests have been opposed to a duty on manganese and iron ores but I believe that they now take the patriotic view of the question and that these small operators must be protected if we are to continue to produce a dependable domestic supply of iron ores and manganese.

Paper Situation Serious

"As for the print paper situation, let me say that thousands of small operators in pulp wood in some of the states in the northern tier are on the verge of bankruptcy because their product is on the free list along with print paper and pulp. The same is true of the paper mills operating in northern states. The allied industries employ tens of thousands under normal conditions but with the unfavorable foreign exchange they now find themselves in a situation where it is only a question of days or weeks before they will be obliged to suspend operations altogether, unless given relief from unusual competition from abroad. My friends, I appeal to you with all the power at my command to support my amendments so that these essential industries may be given adequate protection, and a new lease of life."

Protection Need Greatest

Excerpts from Knutson's address on tariff include:

"My friends, it is my honest belief that never before in the history of the Republic has there been greater need for protection; and why do I say that? For several reasons:

"First. Because of the unemployment situation in this and in other countries.

"Second. Because of adverse rates in foreign exchange.

"Third. Because of the advantageous of foreign and competing producers in the matter of production costs due to lower living levels, longer hours, much lower wages, governmental subsidies, and pooling of interests in regulating production, fixing prices, and apportioning of trade territory.

"Those members of congress who were here during the discussion of the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill in 1929 may recall that at that time I inserted in the Record a partial list of the 2,000 American manufacturers who have moved their plants abroad since the war in order to take advantage of the opportunities there offered for cheaper production in other countries. Nearly all of them are engaged in the manufacture of goods now on the free list, which enables them to manufacture across the water and sell their products in our market. You may recall that I particularly cited the action of Henry Ford in moving his tractor plant from Detroit to Ireland, throwing thousands of willing American laboring men out of work. If we had a tariff on tractors and other products which they manufacture, Mr. Ford and his fellow American industrial expatriates would be compelled to resume operations in this country, and thereby give work to millions of worthy Americans. That is the sole purpose of protection, my friends. If we were to go on a tariff for revenue or free-trade basis, hundreds—yes, thousands—more factories would be moved over there, and thereby further aggravate the very serious problem of unemployment which exists with us today.

We are importing into this country annually, in round figures, about four hundred million dollars worth of products of one kind or another, and it is estimated that we are capable of producing two-thirds of that amount here in our own land. Only the other day I received a letter from northern Minnesota, which reads in part as follows:

"We wish to call your attention to the conditions existing in northern Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Michigan, at the present time, namely, that practically all kinds of logging and cutting of spruce pulpwood and other forest products are at a standstill, for the reason that Canadian timber is being shipped into the United States free of duty; and on account of the difference in monetary exchange the Canadian products are shipped into this country so cheaply that we, in this locality, are unable to compete with their prices, causing a general shutdown over a territory comprising a considerable area of the United States.

"This condition affects all kinds of business in this area, and we think that it has become too one-sided entirely and that we should have some tariff protection from Canadian forest products. We believe that some prompt action should be taken at once in this matter, as we, in this area, should be given some consideration because of the fact that logging and the producing of forest products are really our basic industry in this territory and form the backbone to all of our business enterprises."

Tariff Benefits All
"Mr. Chairman, I am not a 'spot' protectionist. If an adequate tariff is beneficial to us in Minnesota, it is equally helpful to the Oklahoma oil man and the Arizona copper producer. The trouble, as I view it, is that there is not a man or woman in this House but who has some interest back in his or her district which must be protected and the member is most insistent that such interest be given the necessary protection, but when it comes to giving protection to other sections of the country, then the tariff often becomes to that member an indefensible system for 'exploiting the downtrodden consumer.' In other words, too many look upon the great principle of protection as a local issue when it should be a broad and comprehensive national policy that would protect all sections of the country and cover every American industry subjected to competition from abroad."

EASTER SERVICES CROSBY CHURCHES

Members of the Cuyuna Range lodge of Masons will go enmasse to the Easter services at the Crosby Methodist Episcopal church, where a special program of Easter music will be given by a large choir.

Mrs. Mary Gough of Deerwood has directed the rehearsals for this group and the chorus of twenty-five male and female voices will be heard in a number of anthems during the Easter service.

The observance of Easter at the other Crosby churches is featured also by special musical numbers and by programs presented by the Sunday school children.

A three hour devotional service was held by three of the protestant churches in the Crosby Presbyterian church today, with Rev. Robert Kinkead, Rev. Clara Wagner of the Methodist church and Rev. David Carlson of the Lutheran church, assisted by members of all three congregations in the services. The Presbyterian choir sang and there were a number of solo special musical numbers.
